Additionally, the development of our relationship generates information such as transactional data (for example, information you provide about your purchase tickets, orders, returns, etc.), connection and navigation data through the different web pages, complaints and incidents history. TENDAM treats this information statistically in order to analyse the services it provides to its customers.

TENDAM is present, through its brands, in social networks and, in addition to these, provides users with the possibility of communicating with us through different social media. The treatment of the data of the people who become followers establish a link or relation to TENDAM through the social networks or the means of communication made available to them, which will be governed by the legal notice of our website and the conditions of use, privacy policies and other regulations of access, use
